CONTRADICTS HINES

Says He Never Told Lumberman Taft
Wanted "Blond Boss" Elected
Senator.

Washington, D. C., July 20.—Denial of the story by Edward Hines that President Taft and Senator Aldrich sent word to the conflicting factions in the Illinois legislature that William Lorimer was their choice for the senatorship was made today by the investigating committee today by former Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island.

The former "Boss of the Senate" told of having several conversations with Hines relative to the Illinois senatorial situation but declared he and the President were only interested to the extent of wishing to see (Republican, Wisconsin).

In answer to questions by Senator Kenyon, Aldrich declared he never had an active interest in the Illinois situation.

The senate committee on privileges and elections today decided to refer to a subcommittee of five, the question of whether there should be an investigation by the senate of the election of Senator Isaac Stephenson (Republican, Indiana).

The demand for an investigation was officially made of the senate recently by the Wisconsin legislature. Chairman Graham, a Democrat from Illinois, today authorized the statement that Lewis D. Brandeis, the famous Boston attorney, would represent the house committee on expenditures in the interior department in its probe of the Controller Guy, Alaska, situation. Brandeis represented Lewis B. Glavin in the Bullinger-Pinchot controversy.

Mr. Peters went to Chicago this morning to consult an architect regarding plans for remodeling the two blocks which cover three store fronts, into a modern European hotel. The property extends around on bluff street where the Gardner blacksmith shop stands, and it is understood this will be included in the hotel property. The price paid for the last bit of property acquired, the American House, is not stated in the papers filed with the register of deeds.

BE THE SACRIFICE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., July 20.—The candidacy of Senator Walter C. Owen of Madison back for the republican nomination for attorney general is a strong probability, and friends of the senator from the Tenth are already interesting themselves in his cause. Senator Owen has just closed six years of service in the upper house, having succeeded James A. Fear that the latter resigned to run for secretary of state. He represents the St. Croix and Pierce county district and has been a consistent member of the progressive wing of the party during his three terms. Examples of his leadership are cited in the fact that he was made chairman of the special committee of the senate on banking, whose labors resulted in a movement, now taking form, for guarantee of deposits, and in the recent session his chairmanship of the committee on corporations and membership on the committee on legislative procedure.

Senator Owen stated on the floor of the senate near the close of the session that he would not be a member of that body after next year, and this is taken to mean that he is planning to enter the field for the attorney generalship.

TEXAS WILL VOTE ON WET OR DRY AT THE COMING ELECTIONSLone Star State in Throes of the Hottest Liquor Campaign in Its History.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Austin, Texas, July 20.—Texas is about to go to one of the stiffest tests made anywhere in the country between the liquor interests and the anti-liquor forces. The State campaign which has been waged with a bitterness that has seemed to increase daily for the past three months will close tomorrow and on Saturday the voters will decide whether or not an amendment providing for Statewide prohibition shall be added to the Constitution of Texas.

Reports from all directions indicate that this is by far the most bitter political struggle which ever has occurred in the Lone Star State. Today and tomorrow the fight will be brought to a white-hot finish with mass meetings in every nook and corner of the Commonwealth, from the Panhandle to the Gulf, and from El Paso to the forests of East Texas.

It seems impossible to forecast the result of the special election with any degree of certainty. From the headquarters of both the prohibitionists and the anti-prohibitionists are emanating reports indicating that both sides view the outlook with equal confidence.

Some onlookers see in the results of the last Democratic primary an indication of the vote in the coming election. To the majority, however, the results of the recent primary only serve to make the present situation the more puzzling. In the primary and extraordinary vote for Railroad Commissioner Oscar B. Colquitt, the anti-prohibitionist candidate for governor, was polled, but at the same time a great demand for the submission of the prohibition question was voted. In Democratic Texas nomination in a Democratic primary is equivalent to election, and although Mr. Colquitt was assured of the post of governor he was obliged by the vote of the people to submit to a vote on the question of prohibition.

Throughout the campaign both sides have maintained headquarters in a number of the leading cities of the state. From these headquarters tons of literature have been mailed and hundreds of speakers have been sent forth to tramp the country from end to end. Governor Colquitt himself has led the forces of anti-prohibition. On the anti-prohibition side, former Governor Campbell has been one of the most active workers. The newspapers, the churches, the Y. M. C. A., and numerous other organizations have lined up on one side or the other in the campaign and many instances are cited where even families are split over the issue.

The only feature of the struggle which stands out with unmistakable clearness is the fact that the public generally is desirous that the salient question be definitely settled once and for all, for it has long been a bugbear in Texas politics. But whether they want to vote on the salient at the same time is a question that can be answered only by a count of the votes on the afternoon.

The Wisconsin commission has been in existence for twenty years but had always lacked powers of enforcement. The legislature recently strengthened it, and California's public utility law, which was modeled after Wisconsin's, through the initiative of State Senator Sutherland of California, is now the basis for a constitutional amendment now before the people which proposes to write regulation of utilities into the fundamental law of the state.

The new Wisconsin law reforming the method of collecting and paying for expenses of examinations of insurance companies has now gone into effect. This law was among the last to be signed by Gov. McGovern and was legislation that the department had urged for the past two years. It provides that all moneys collected from companies for examinations must be paid into the state treasury and all expenses be audited by the state treasurer and paid out of the state treasury. It requires companies to deposit with the commissioner of insurance on his order the estimated amount of examinations. The recommendation of the commissioner that one examination every five years be made of all domestic companies at the expense of the state was stricken out by amendment in the assembly. While the principle was recognized as right, it was felt that the state could not afford at this time to enter upon such a plan.

Washington, D. C., July 20.—In order to illustrate the tremendous impetus which has lately been given to the nation-wide movement for improved public highways the United States office of public roads has just prepared a chart which shows that nearly 15,000 miles of transcontinental, interstate and trunk-line roads are contemplated in various parts of the country.

This chart shows to what extent the "good roads" movement has taken possession of the country. North, South, West and East, the improved roads, some largely planned, others actually under construction, literally make a network covering the whole country.

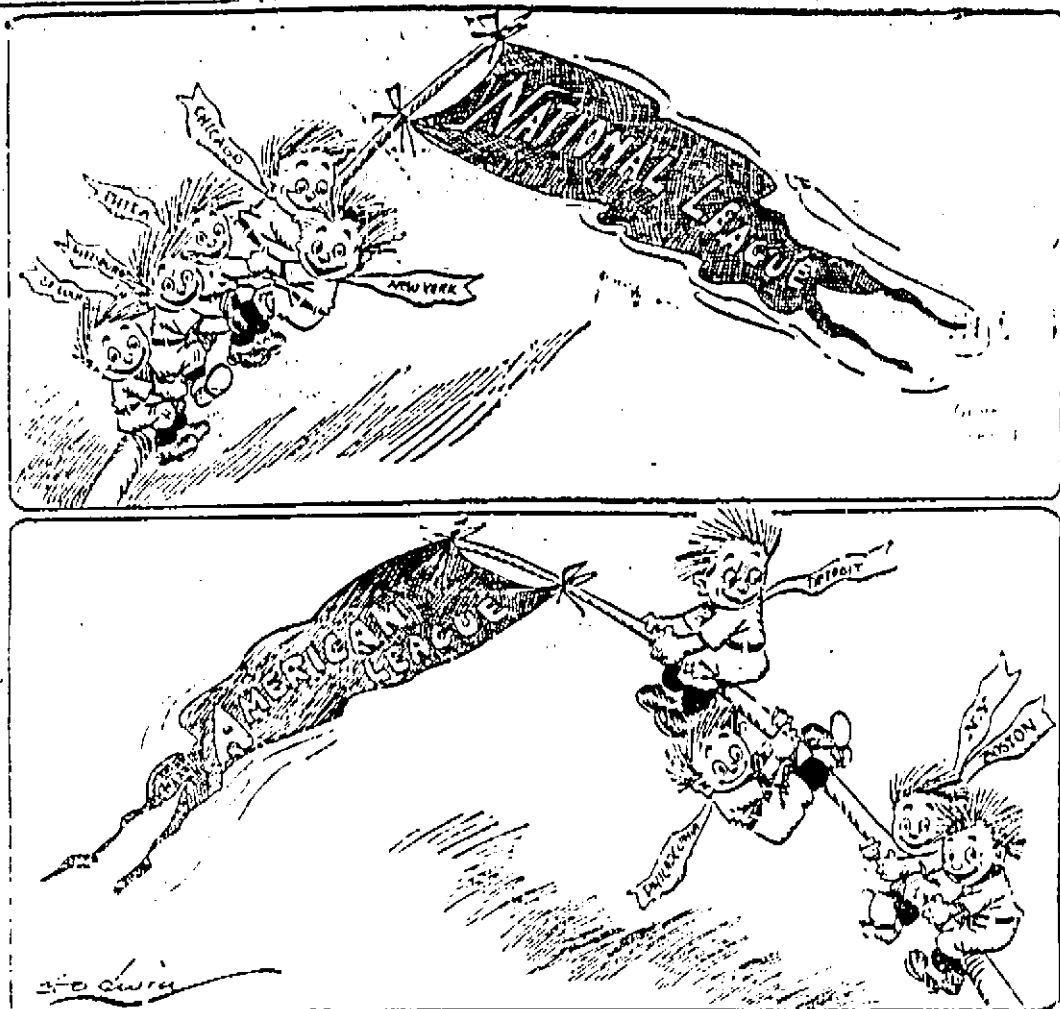

If all the plans contemplated are carried out by the men and communities behind them, it will be possible to drive wagons or run automobiles from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast; from Vancouver, B. C. to Tijuana, Mexico; from Montreal, Canada, to Miami, Fla., and always over the modern macadamized highways.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., July 20.—Using the Wisconsin railroad commission as its pattern, the railroad commission of California will make a study of the organization and methods of the latter body today. The California commission is represented in Madison this week by Max Thelen, a brilliant San Francisco attorney and graduate of the Harvard law school, who is counsel for the commission. Mr. Thelen visited the office of the Wisconsin commission yesterday and will be here the rest of the week to make a thorough canvass of the commission's work.

The California commission has been in existence for twenty years but had always lacked powers of enforcement. The legislature recently strengthened it, and California's public utility law, which was modeled after Wisconsin's, through the initiative of State Senator Sutherland of California, is now the basis for a constitutional amendment now before the people which proposes to write regulation of utilities into the fundamental law of the state.

TO TEST EFFICIENCY OF BALLOONS AND
AIRSHIPS IN WARGovernment Will Conduct Exhaustive
Live Trials of Lighter Than Air
Machines At Maneuvers About
August 1.

Washington, July 20.—For the first time in history, exhaustive tests as to the efficiency and adaptability of dirigibles and aeroplanes in war will be held at Hampton Roads about the first of August in conjunction with the naval maneuvers which will take place then. Not satisfied with the usual method of minute war, actual ammunition will be used on the aircraft and the naval authorities will have some method of judging as to the accuracy with which the guns now in use in the navy can be relied upon to annihilate an approaching dirigible. For this purpose immense kites, made in shape similar to aeroplanes.

The dirigibles will be manned with dummies, representing the crew. The guns of the land and naval fortifications will be trained on these "attacking parties" and the officials will have some ground for judging just how much they would have to depend upon were an enemy actually to attack us through the air.

England, France and Germany have made a number of experiments regarding the efficiency of the smaller guns in repelling attacks on an air enemy, but this will be the first time in the world's history that the three and six-inch artillery has been utilized for this purpose. Another unique feature of the tests will be the fact that each vessel taking part in the experiments will be allowed to use its guns according to the idea of its own captain, for the Ordnance Department has announced that during these tests and allowing the individual theories of each ship's commander to prevail. It is thought that in this manner, a large amount of new material and new methods will be discovered which would otherwise remain unknown. The ship which makes the best record will be presented with a suitable trophy.

At the same time the navy makes these tests, the army will be conducting similar ones at Sandy Hook. The new four and six-inch rifles will be tested there and particular interest is attached to the new provision cap recently invented by a United States army officer, which is supposed to explode when it strikes the gas bag of a balloon, producing a large rent in covering it if this cap does its work as well as is expected, one shot will be sufficient to put a dirigible out of business.

SIGNAL TOWERS AID

METHOD OF FIRE
PREVENTION.

TAX COMMISSION CASE

Fifth Biennial Report to Governor by Tax Commission Deplores Excess Tax for Home Insurance Companies—Opinions on Other Matters.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., July 20.—Wisconsin will be the first of western states to use signal towers as an aid to prevention of forest fires. State Forester E. M. Griffiths upon his return yesterday from a trip to northern Wisconsin made known plans for the immediate erection of six steel towers, similar to windmills, at as many high points of land in the state forest reserves in Vilas and adjoining counties. They will be constructed on concrete bases to withstand the fierce winds that sweep across those regions.

A platform at the top of the towers will be enclosed with a string of wires stretched at right angles to form squares, each wire to be numbered. At dry periods, the wire rangers will be stationed in the towers to search the landscape for twenty miles around for smoke from forest fires. When smoke is discovered the watcher will denote its position with respect to the crossing of two of the wires in his lookout, and a map at hand will tell him in a moment the corresponding position of the smoke as to town and range numbers. A telephone will be installed in the tower and the watcher will be enabled to call up his associate rangers nearest to the fire, who will take steps to extinguish the fire at once.

Has Shown Efficiency.
This method of prevention, which is entirely new in this part of the United States, has been tried in Maine with marked efficiency. Its success in Vilas county is believed to be assured also.

The building of fire lines is going on rapidly in the state's reserves. A strip of woods not exceeding 25 feet wide is cleared, the strip extending usually from lake to lake, thousands of which dot the region named. The fire lines are intended to prevent the spread of surface fires and also give the patrols a vantage point from which they may fight the flames. Each ranger is given one and one-half townships (10,000 acres) to patrol. The rangers' cabins, now being built, will be connected by telephone.

The rangers have pulled up the ties that formed the base for fifteen miles of old logging roads, and another combustible that has been the cause of the spread of many forest fires has thus been removed. Tall dead snags are being cut down. These are fruitful causes of spread of fire. The firelines will be used also as roads.

Lumbermen are co-operating heartily with the state forestry board in this work.

Tax Commission Case.
The state of Wisconsin's practice of exacting a license fee from home life insurance companies much in excess of that demanded of foreign companies is regarded adversely by the panel as tax commission in a chapter of its fifth biennial report to the governor, made public today. The commission holds there is no satisfactory reason why any state should exact more from its home companies.

A Wisconsin company, the Northwestern Mutual, is cited as an example of the effects of the policy now being pursued. Legislation seeking a large reduction of the taxes of this company was initiated in the legislature just closed, but failed. The commission, in its report, says the company's tax in 1911 is $150,704.75, or over 90 per cent of its income on all its assets except real estate.

"The unjustifiable excessiveness of such rate of taxation on assets of this character seems manifest," concludes the commission.

The same company paid retaliatory taxes in 1900 to an amount aggregating over $50,000 to the states of New York, Illinois, Connecticut and New Jersey, while the license fees from life insurance companies of those states transacting business for the same company, paid to this state for the same period, amounted to $27,607. Later legislation relieved domestic companies from the operation of retaliatory laws of other states, while producing about the same amount of revenue.

Against Tax Exemption.
The committee keeps exhaustively into the theory of life insurance taxation. It does not approve the contention urged on behalf of life insurance companies that life insurance is a beneficial thing should be encouraged by exemption instead of being burdened by a tax.

"All institutions for encouragement of thrift," it says, "for protection and in safe investment of savings, are in some degree beneficial; but it is not perceived that the institution of life insurance is so far different from others in this respect as to warrant its total exemption."

The old commission, N. S. Gilson, George Curtis, Jr., and Nils P. Thunberg, quotes Prof. T. S. Adams, a member of the present commission, on this subject as follows:

"The proposal to build a system of taxation on a summary principles—penalizing waste and thriftlessness, penalizing waste and thriftlessness, penalizing waste and thriftlessness—has been repeatedly made in the past and has been repeatedly rejected. It is impracticable for one thing, because the more it succeeds the less revenue it yields."

LONG LITIGATION ON RATE QUESTION OVER

DECISION OF RATE COMMISSION PRACTICALLY COMPLETE VICTORY FOR CITY.

CITY ATTORNEY ADAMS

Was the One Who Led the Fight Against the Deloit Water, Gas & Electric Co. T. S. Nolan of This City Rendering Valuable Aid.

The Wisconsin Railroad Commission has rendered its decision in the case begun by the City of Deloit against the Deloit Water, Gas & Electric company. A brief mention of the opinion was made in the telegraphic columns in the Gazette of yesterday, stating some of the points decided. The full text of the decision is not at hand. It is fair to state, however, from the information procurable, that practically all the points contended for by the city have been decided in its favor.

This is perhaps the end of what is considered the most bitterly fought contest ever before the commission. The controversy has continued for a period of about four years. A committee was appointed by the common council first, to confer with the company and endeavor to secure concessions from it that were generally demanded by the public. Conference were held, but the result was unsatisfactory.

On March 30, 1908, the common council instructed the city attorney to institute proceedings against the Deloit Water, Gas & Electric company to investigate its service and rates, and procure, if possible, an order obliging it to install meters for consumers of water. The resolution further provided that the city attorney be empowered to employ legal aid and all other assistance that might be necessary to carry out the provisions of the resolution.

Harry W. Adams, who was then and is now city attorney, prepared fully for the contest. He hired W. H. Wheeler, who was one of the original owners of the water works in Deloit, P. F. Fowler of Chicago, electrical and mechanical; C. H. Evans of Chicago, gas expert; George W. Sturtevant of Chicago, civil engineer and builder of water works. He also retained Thos. S. Nolan of this city as legal counsel.

The hearing before the Commission began June 1, 1909, and the date of the last session was on March 29, 1910. The Deloit Water, Gas & Electric company employed as experts, Demetrius Williams of Chicago, expert on water; A. E. Forslund of New York, gas expert; L. G. Van Nostrand of Memphis, electrical expert; D. W. Mead of the University of Wisconsin, who is considered one of the ablest water power engineers in the United States; and T. M. Orison of Appleton, Wisconsin, an authority on water power. John C. Reed, its attorneys, was aided by Olin & Butler, attorneys, of Madison.

The testimony taken in the case covered 2,407 typewritten pages. There are over 1,000 additional pages, covering the reports of experts. The cost to the city of Deloit was approximately $12,000; to the Deloit Water, Gas & Electric company, approximately $30,000.

The railroad commission fixes the present value of all the property of the company at $815,902. It orders that the company install meters at its own expense for such consumers of water whose residence or place of business is connected with the sewer or cesspool. Small consumers will pay a service charge of $1.00 per quarter of a year, and 10 cents net per 1,000 gallons for the first 50,000 used per quarter, the rate dropping to as low as 2 cents per 1,000 gallons for water used in excess of 125,000 gallons per quarter. The commission decided that large users were found to be paying less than they should, and small consumers somewhat more than they should.

Formerly small consumers of gas paid at the rate of $1.50 per 1,000 cubic feet, plus a meter rental of 10 cents. Under the new rate they will pay $1.25 per 1,000 cubic feet, the rate dropping after 5,000 cubic feet per month to $1.15 per thousand, and after 15,000 cubic feet, to 90 cents net per 1,000 cubic feet. The minimum bill for small consumers with 3 and 5 light meters is reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents per month.

The rate fixed for electricity is as follows: Primary rate 12 cents per K. W. H., for the first 20 hours' use per month of the active connected load. (Was formerly 15 cents per K. W. H.) Secondary, 7 cents per K. W. H., excess 4 cents per K. W. H.

It is difficult to estimate the probable reduction in the revenue of the company as the result of the new rates, owing to the fact that water consumers in the past have been paying on the flat rate basis, and will in the future presumably pay upon a meter basis. The railroad commission estimates that the probable reduction to private consumers in the city of Deloit will be approximately $16,000 per year. Owing to conditions which prevail in the water and electric departments, the railroad commission will probably review operations in those under the new schedules ordered, and at the expiration of one year may make further adjustments.

The City of Deloit is to be congratulated on the result of this litigation. Its action affords a precedent that other cities should not hesitate to follow. Having concluded to institute this investigation, it placed the matter entirely in the hands of its city attorney, and afforded him every possible aid to prepare his case and present it properly to the Railroad Commission. Its confidence in Mr. Adams was not misplaced. Although a young man, he is an excellent lawyer, and his management of this case indicates remarkable industry and ability. For a time it looked to outsiders as if the city of Deloit would be deterred by the probable expense, from making the necessary preparations for this investigation, but the common council honored any demand, either financial

FOURTEEN YEAR OLD BOY HAD GAY TIME ON STOLEN FUNDS

Chester Phelps of Albany Acted Part of Young Prince With Money Taken From Fred Burt, Section Foreman of That Place.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Albany, Wis., July 20.—One of the boldest feats of "treasoned finance" ever attempted in this section was carried through by Chester Phelps, a fourteen year old youth of this place, who, it is alleged, stole $5,000 from Fred Burt, of this place, a section foreman, lived like a king for a week before he was suspected of having committed a crime or having taken the money.

Burt, who has been employed by the railroad here for many years, had saved up several thousand dollars, part of which he had deposited in the bank. A good share of the money, however, five thousand five hundred dollars, in bills, with certificates of deposit and a few hundred dollars in gold, Burt kept in a small grip under his bed.

It is alleged that young Phelps learned where Burt kept the money, so he went to his cottage about two weeks ago, took the grip from under the bed and after removing five thousand dollars in currency, threw the grip such into the woods at the rear of the house. The boy went to Janesville where he remained two or three days and thence to Whitewater where he spent money freely and attempted to purchase an automobile.

The lad, however, was recognized by a former Albany resident living there, who wondered at the "flushness" of the youth, especially as the young man's parents were poor. The boy had flashed a roll of bills and kept the rest of the money in a suitcase.

Phelps remained in Whitewater three days and then went to Milwaukee. After he had left Whitewater, the former Albany man became suspicious and telephoned to Albany. Phelps' brother went to Milwaukee and met the lad at the depot just as the latter was about to leave for La Crosse.

He brought the youngster back to Albany and the lad was questioned as to how he had secured the money, but he stoutly maintained that he had found a pearl and sold it in Janesville. In all the young man was gone about ten days and he had spent about three hundred dollars. Of the original and this lad's parents put in the bank of Albany for safe keeping.

An inquiry was made about town but no one could be found to whom the money belonged. Burt was questioned but denied that he had any money. The inquiry, however, aroused his curiosity and he went home to look for the grip in which his money had been kept. He could not find it and the matter was reported to the authorities here.

A search was made about the home and the grip with the deposit slips and the gold, which the boy had evidently overlooked, was found. The remainder of the stolen money was turned over to Burt.

After a "sweating" the boy admitted the theft. It is not likely that he will be prosecuted as Burt does not care to prosecute if the money is returned to him.

SENT HIS THANKS TO AMERICAN ADMIRAL FOR THE KINDNESS

"Brother" Joseph Dutton Writes Janesville Friends of the Sight of the American Fleet.

To a man who has been a soldier under the stars and stripes and is now buried in the depths of a Leper colony, the sight of Old Glory trailing at the mast head of one of the finest fleets in the world is perhaps an experience for becoming proud of the fact he was instrumental in bringing this sight before the vision of his hundreds of hopeless charges in far off Hawaii.

It is a matter of pride to Brother Joseph, formerly a Janesville resident, to send the copies of the letters which passed between himself and Admiral concerned in the name of everyone here, of an in the leper asylum, a piece having in it some sentiments, it cannot be denied, but it is the name of sensible and contented people, whose lot has become after many years of labor and improvement a condition not so very different to bearing patience as our Leper nurse. A people also becoming better acquainted with our Uncle Sam, and better satisfied to be Americans.

Thus do I express the most hearty thanks. Personally it is a gratitude almost beyond expression. Am thinking to myself, "Did over one deserve so little and get so much?"

There has been everywhere in the Settlement, so far as I have any knowledge, the greatest possible praise. If anything is lacking, it is a new word in the dictionary to supply words for this.

Our abode has been called "Molokai, the Blest." It has surely been at this day.

And the artistic temperament is not the least amongst the things benefited. Such a conjunction of wonders, both of the creation as seen in Nature's boundless museum, and in the works that man has brought to such perfection could hardly anywhere in the world have more impressive position than in the unique grandeur of the mountains of Molokai and the silent, stately movement of that column of sixteen noble battleships as they came and such precise formation down the lane to the Leper Settlement.

Very gratefully,
JOSEPH DUTTON,
Executive Chamber, Honolulu, Hawaii.
July 23, 1908.

Brother Joseph Dutton,
Kahawao, Molokai, T. H.
My Dear Brother Dutton:

Your letter of the 17th instant, with that for Admiral Sperry, and the photographs were received in due time. Your letter to the Admiral was at once transmitted to him and the photographs were put in separate packages and delivered to his Chief of Staff, who immediately handed them to an orderly with instructions to take a camera and distribute them to all the Captains inside and outside the harbor. Your letter to the Admiral was published in the papers with the Admiral's warm approval. The Admiral was very much pleased with your letter and has spoken to me about it several times. When I dined with him the other evening, he had the photographs you sent him spread out on the desk in his cabin and called attention to them with a great deal of satisfaction. I understand that he has sent to Mr. Motz-Smith a letter to be transmitted to you with his photograph. He said that he was only too glad to have the ships go by the Settlement and that there was no difficulty at all in having that done; the mere suggestion was sufficient. I infer from your letters that the Settlement fully appreciated having the Fleet pass near it and it is certainly a gratification to me that it was possible to bring this about.

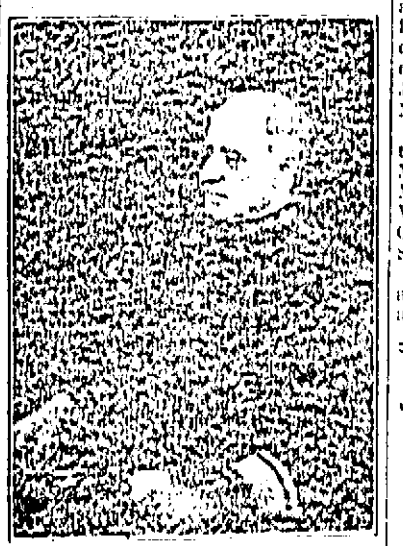

Very sincerely yours,
JOSEPH DUTTON,
Governor.

That the people of the Leper Settlement appreciated the presence of the passing Fleet, and the great will and the sentiment that prompted it, is evident from the following letter for Rear Admiral Charles Stillman Sperry, in Galathea and Good Will, to Governor W. F. Fear, Honolulu:

My Dear Sir: That splendid fleet of United States battleships coming from San Francisco to Honolulu, turning from the big road, coming down the lane, passing in parade our front yard along the full extent of the Molokai Leper Settlement, under the towering rear wall, over two thousand feet high, which is flanked by majestic headlands and backed by a reserve of mountains that are much higher. Thus, precisely on time and in exact order, with grave and solemn movement, not like the cute little streamer that flicks its heels and scatters the dust, but like a powerful warrior in battle array—came the sixteen, this "around the world" patrol that Mr. Roosevelt is sending in the name of Uncle Sam. These sixteen battleships that have the full confidence of America came down the lane with a proudly and passed on, so dignified and beautiful, this early July morning. The weather is favorable, everything is for this wonderful visit, this visit so exceedingly wonderful as to make the blood tingle and the heart grow warm. It helps to bring on inherent patriotism to the surface. It makes us love our whole Navy, every officer, every sailor, it makes us salute Uncle Sam very affectionately. It makes us better Americans. It is an object lesson to all Americans or otherwise.

And may God bless everyone who has had even a little to do with bringing about this great pleasure.

The writer had that great fortune to think of, and to suggest the possibility of such a visit. You have been, however, as our directed Governor, the most active in obtaining it. Surgeon General Walter Wyman has helped, also Dan W. O. Smith, and the Territorial Secretary, E. A. Motz-Smith. Without this great recommendation the proposition would hardly have succeeded. The Interior Department and the Secretary of the Navy have been very nice in forwarding the matter, and for that action Rear Admiral Sperry, in command of the fleet, has given prompt attention.

In all this I am speaking for the people of the Leper Settlement. Mr. Wahman, representing the Board of Health in the absence of Mr. McVeh, has asked me to extend thanks to all

AUTO DAMAGED IN COLLISION TODAY

Fender and Lamp on Machine Owned by John Mosher Broken When Car Struck Wagon Loaded With Crushed Stone.

By colliding with the rear end of a wagon loaded with crushed stone on the west end of the Milwaukee street bridge, the large automobile owned by John Mosher, manager of the South Janesville hotel, was slightly damaged about 11 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Mosher was driving at the right of the street and at some distance behind the wagon which was near the center of the street, when the driver suddenly turned directly in front of the automobile. The machine struck the wagon before Mr. Mosher had time to set the brakes.

The fender and one lamp on the auto were broken and some of the paint was scratched off the front of the machine.

As the Romans Did.
Anyone who has made a trip to sea has seen the ingenious, propeller-shaped appliance which is thrown overboard at the end of a long cord, and by means of which the officers get an approximate idea of their speed. This is not a new idea, for in ancient times the Romans had a similar appliance for ascertaining their rate of progress at sea. They dragged little paddle-wheels behind their ships, the revolutions of which enabled them to estimate the distance which the ship had traveled.

Needed Covering.
On the morning after the Charleston earthquake a family was sitting half clad, shivering in the dawn. "Oh, Aunt Fannie," said the young woman, "there's a horrid big worm on your shoulder." "Leave it on, Aunt Fannie," said the young woman's husband. "You need all the covering you can get."—Success.

UNLIMITED ARBITRATION.
Stepping aside from the partisan spirit that has involved the so-called radicals and conservative republicans in a family quarrel, it is interesting to watch the progress that President Taft is making toward an unlimited arbitration of all matters which refer to affairs of nations that might lead to a world demonstration.

President Taft does not overestimate the moral value of communicating to the senate, if it be possible, unlimited arbitration treaties with three of the most powerful nations of the earth, Great Britain, Germany and France, at one time. "The wonderful thing, everything considered, is that such a step may be deemed possible. When Secretary Knox first put forward his tentative proposal looking to the establishment of an international judicial court of arbitration to which the several governments would agree to submit all disputes that had failed of settlement through the ordinary channels of diplomacy, and asked other nations to join with the United States in furthering this method of procedure, the failure of what was termed a rather venturesome if not a meddlesome and impertinent enterprise was freely predicted at home and abroad.

It may be recalled by those who have followed the matter with attention that the proposal was received by the representatives of the different governments with every appearance of coldness. So unresponsive, apparently, were the nations addressed that the probable recall of the proposal, in order that the dignity of the country might be no longer offended by contemptuous silence, was rumored. Even Great Britain, the nation to which the state department had looked for encouragement with greatest confidence, refrained for an embarrassing length of time from giving the slightest indication of its attitude toward a proposal the success of which, perhaps, would mean more to her than to any other country. The German chancellor was the first to break the silence. He did not, of course, mention the American proposal directly in his reply to the ambassador demanding for a general stripping of the war estimates, but he, nevertheless, made it clear by his reference to arbitration in general that he regarded the idea of international settlements under extreme circumstances through this process as an absurdity. France gave no sign. The administration at Washington seemed to be on the point of suffering a humiliation which the whole country would feel most keenly when Sir Edward

PRESS COMMENT.
Predictions!
Fond du Lac Reporter: The income tax bill has been signed by the governor and before many more weeks that individual will be sadly regretting that he ever signed the pen in the ink to attach his signature to a measure which has been generally and rightly condemned by the people of the state.

Grey's speech endorsing the American plan rank out, at once surprising and electrifying the civilized world. The United Kingdom appeared to have been only awaiting the signal, for it became manifest at once not only that the British government was prepared to enter into an unlimited peace compact with the United States, but that nothing short of this would satisfy British public opinion. France followed, and then, stranger than all, Germany entered upon negotiations that have proceeded far and favorably enough to justify the President in believing that it may be his pleasure to submit to the senate a treaty for unlimited arbitration with that country drawn upon lines similar to those followed in the treaties with Great Britain and France.

It is not expected that any of these treaties shall be ratified at the present session of congress. Extended discussion of the principle involved in the several proposed compacts must be benefited the world over in an educational way. The moral influence of such a discussion may be tremendous. Great as is the advancement that marks the entrance of leading nations into what amounts to a perpetual peace compact, it is not enough. Peace-lovers everywhere will not be satisfied until all the nations are brought into similar agreements, not only with this country but with each other.

That ten thousand dollar hold-up and robbery of three lone Indians which was herded throughout the country by an ambitious aspirant for journalistic honors has developed into the loss of forty-five dollars and three cheap watches.

In New York the Ice Trust is being subjected to a severe grilling. It is also true in other large cities where there are many poor families who suffer for lack of the frozen lumps, that when hot weather comes prices go up.

When it comes to raising funds for a series of band concerts the little city of Edgerton takes the plum. Seven hundred dollars was subscribed in two days. Think of that and then add your contribution to the fund for the local band concerts.

Senators object to having their campaign expenses cut to ten cents a vote. Some point out that this will not even give them publicity in the newspapers for which the cruel editors charge so much a line.

It looks now as though congress would not get through in time for the poor, over-worked members to get even a small part of their vacation or even deliver a few chautauqua lectures.

If Janesville can not have a county fair this year why not at least have a few matinee races or a motorcycle speed contest or something of that kind?

That revolution in Haiti comes at an inopportune time. There is so much of more important news of the world that it gets tucked away in an obscure corner of the news columns.

That Dr. Wiley matter has stirred up more than talk in Washington and the question now is where will it end?

Spain has brought itself into the limelight with its arrest of a French officer and now the little kingdom without a navy is wondering what will happen.

Even though they do say that Jimmy Garfield will support someone else for President, still it is a fact that "Son Jimmy" would like to have the lightning strike his way after all.

Mr. Bryan is running a school for Presidential candidates. He is to be the president, teacher and examining board, and thus far none of his pupils have pleased him or passed his tests.

Bolton has gained a great victory in securing the reduction of the gas, water and electric rates for its citizens. Where are the Janesville suits meanwhile?

Strange that the summer has passed without the sage advice of Roosevelt being infused into the halls of congress.

Why journey to the seashore or lake resorts for an outing when the Rock River is right at your doors waiting to be enjoyed?

Janesville is planning for its fair with a civic spirit that other cities in the state might do well to emulate.

Trim your trees. That is the latest order of the street commissioner. It is a good order and should be obeyed.

Who's Next?
Oshkosh Northwestern: And now Attorney General Wickersham is charged with shielding the members of the notorious Alaska syndicate and not proceeding against them when he had evidence of criminal conspiracy to rob the government. ## Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE

SALUTING A STATUE.
The character of Peter in F. Hopkinson Smith's book (you should read it) is a fine old gentleman who lifts his hat to the statue of George Washington.

The author tells it this way: "Peter wheeled and lifted his hat to the statue. 'Good morning, your excellency,' he said in a voice mellowed by the same respectful tone with which he would have addressed the original in the flesh."

A strange conceit? His companion thought so and laughed at it, whereat Peter says: "He wasn't put there for ornament, my boy, but to be kept in mind, and there is no place in the world where his example is so much needed as in Wall street. Nobody remembers anything nowadays. . . . Even our presidents have to be murdered before we stop abusing them."

Afterward, moralizing, he says: "Into our may go respect for tradition, reverence for the dead, decency, love of religion, sentiment, beauty. They are back numbers."

"Do you wonder, my boy, why I touch my hat to his excellency?" Nor was Peter a crank. He was the hard headed paying teller of a Wall street bank.

But he had ideals. The novel itself is a story of the clash between modern business methods and idealism.

Is the indictment too sweeping? "Taney a money and broker snuffing, even in his mind, that fine statue opposite the treasury?"

To a high financier, absorbed in the game, tradition has no glamour, greatness no precedence of honor, goodness no prestige, heroism no appeal. "The tender grace of a day that is dead," Valley Forge, Yorktown—these are nothing to him.

And, without being pessimistic, it may be said that lack of reverence is one of the crying evils of our day.

What of the callow youth who dubs his father "the old man" and speaks of his mother as "the old lady"? Who calls his father's advice "dope" and speaks of his mother's caution as "dream stuff"? What of the girl who, in the presence of guests, is greatly distressed over mother's accent or father's table manners?

Imagine these youngsters displaying reverence at the foot of the statue of George Washington!

In Lincoln park, Chicago, not long ago, I heard one of these irreverent sprigs speak of the great statue of Abraham Lincoln as "the old party on the pedestal."

Peter Grayson was right.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY
By A. W. MACY.
ANOTHER STRENUOUS ROOSEVELT.
Other Roosevelts besides Theodore have been noted for strenuousness. Nicholas J. Roosevelt was one of them. He flourished in the early years of the nineteenth century, and may be called the father of steam navigation in the west. In 1811 he made a voyage on a flatboat from Pittsburgh to New Orleans, to ascertain whether steam could be used as a motive power on the Ohio and Mississippi. Everybody discouraged the idea, but on his return, with the aid of Fulton and Stevenson he built a steamboat to try it out. The boat was called the "New Orleans," and cost about $38,000. With his wife and a small crew he embarked at Pittsburgh amid the plaudits of thousands. People said it was all right going down, but the boat could never be made to go up the river. At Cincinnati he took some people aboard for a little ride, and scared them nearly to death by letting the boat drift toward the Falls of the Ohio. Suddenly reversing the engine, he took the boat up stream three or four miles, to their great relief and delight. The voyage was a great success, and the forerunner of many more.

commission finds justification for taxation of inheritance and also taxes upon incomes beyond a reasonable minimum of subsistence.

"To the extent that such taxes may be reasonably imposed," concludes the commission, "they may be justly placed upon credits or the income therefrom notwithstanding the taxation also of the actual property represented by credits."

The commission finds no reason for exempting real estate held by life insurance companies from taxes. Upon the subject of the taxation of other assets the commission holds:

"Simply justice seems to demand that each taxing jurisdiction, at least each state jurisdiction, should have such proportion of the total tax revenue as is borne, theoretically at least, by policyholders resident therein, and no more. . . . Now, if any of the several American states will relinquish the right to tax foreign companies and such taxes when imposed will be somewhat in proportion to the assets of such companies equitably belonging to policyholders resident in the state which makes the exaction."

The commission also concludes that the rate must be determined largely with reference to what the accumulated assets of the companies can reasonably and justly bear.

General Property Tax.
Speaking of the general property tax, with which topic the report begins the tax commission discusses the failure of this tax to approach personal property, especially concerning stock and farm animals, however, as assessed fully as well as real estate, which is not true of any other class of personal property.

"The rule prevails," says the report, "that the more specific classes of personal property are far better assessed than the more indefinite classes, such as merchandise and manufacturers' stock, wagons, carriages and sleighs, the group included under the term 'all other personal property,' and moneys and credits."

Moneys and credits showed an average local assessment of only 23.25 per cent of true value for the entire state. In many assessment districts the moneys and credits are entirely ignored. This was true in 1909 in every assessment district in the counties of Douglas, Florence, Iron, Sawyer, Vilas and Washburn. The commission therefore placed a valuation of its own off on the moneys and credits. In the counties named of $85,714-$895,381 of this kind in Douglas county alone.

"This added nothing to the local assessment rolls, but in the apportionment of state taxes the taxpayers whose property was upon the rolls had to carry the burden of this additional valuation the owners of which escaped. There was added in the same manner to the local valuation more than a million dollars in each of the following counties: Brown, $2,246,386; Dane, $3,307,199; Dodge, $2,110,815; Fond du Lac, $2,286,321; Grant, $1,135,116; Jefferson, $1,762,118; Manitowish, $1,229,349; Marathon, $1,196,311; Milwaukee, $1,592,281; Outagamie, $2,554,315; Racine, $2,255,255; Rock, $2,881,382; Sauk, $1,659,240; Sheboygan, $2,577,875; Walworth, $1,165,345; Waukesha, $1,618,658; Winnebago, $3,019,807. For the entire state the increase of the local assessment was $73,550,551.

Recommendation is made for a higher rate of revenue of automobiles, on account of the injury wrought to highways. The legislature has just increased the rate and the new fee of $5 will go into effect Aug. 1.

The law for taxation of minerals is declared to be "absolutely impossible of enforcement." "It would be more logical," says the commission, "and tend to better administration if the lands were assessed without regard to the minerals, and the latter subjected to an occupation or privilege tax when extracted, or were included under the income tax."

The income tax is the subject of an extended chapter, and its recommendations are in the main those which has just been incorporated in the newly-enacted law upon the subject.

"The income tax would take the place, in part at least," it is suggested, "of the tax now contributed by personal property, and should as nearly as possible equal the amount formerly contributed by the personal property exempted."

The report shows that the state is now taxing under the ad valorem system railroad companies, street railway companies and electric light, heat and power companies, operated in connection with street railways, telegraph companies and express, sleeping car, freight line and equipment companies, and the conclusion is reached that this system must continue for many years at least.

The commission suggests that the present law for the taxation of companies to appropriate to the state the proceeds of such taxation except such proportion as may be represented by the earnings from intra-urban transportation.

A mossback, old and sad and I; and while I dream the world goes by, and greets me with a jeer, "You are a fossil," so I sing, because I love the olden things, the things of yesterday.

THE MOSSBACK was young, in bygone age, we looked unlovely; but now, if wisdom we would learn, away from a child. This is the strident's golden time; "young blood" will make the world sublime; old things must pass away; old customs that our fathers knew, old laws, which the nation grew, all these have had their day. If anything is white with years, it is a thing for jests and jeers and mirth and ribald roars; and babes and sucklings tell us why the helms of the land must die, and honored be no more. When any plan that's new is tried, it represents a forward stride, however wild it seems; and if a mossback, passing hold, defends the tested and the old, he deals in fossil dreams. I am a mossback, old and gray; the sum of my life's little day is sinking in the west; and till the gloom of night descends, I'll love old ways, old times, old friends—I love the old things best!

When You Cook With Gas

There was a time when housewives looked forward to summer with horror. They dreaded working in the same room with a hot fire going all the time.

It is different today. Summer is no longer a bughour for that reason because the Gas Range enables the housewife to keep the kitchen as cool as any other room in the house. When there is nothing to be cooked there is no fire to heat the room. There is never any coal to carry—and keep on carrying—and there are no ashes to lug around, sending dust over everything in the kitchen. WHEN YOU COOK WITH GAS.

FOUND NO TRACE OF BUNK CAR ROBBERS

MEN WHO ROBBED ITALIAN LABORERS IN BUNK CAR MADE ESCAPE IN DARKNESS.

A LONG SEARCH MADE

Yards at South Janesville Were Gone Over by Officers Short Time After Robbery, But No Clues as to Identity of Robbers Could Be Found.

That the robbery at the new yards last evening was committed by "strongarm" men, possibly from Chicago, and members of a band traveling through here is the theory of the police today. This belief was given credence in the report to Chief of Police Appleby last night that a similar robbery was committed at Madison Wednesday night, and the bold deed was evidently well timed as the Italian who were held up had received their month's wages from the Northwestern railroad but a day or so previous.

Fifty-five dollars in money, two watches and two guns was the haul the thugs secured, these being taken from three Italian laborers who were in one of the three cars in which they live. All four men implicated in the robbery were mugged and one carried a gun. The cars were standing on a sidetrack near the road chutes, the men being employed shoveling coal there.

It is evident that the men who took part in the robbery were here during the day yesterday, and had the thing all carefully planned beforehand. Four suspicious looking characters were seen about the yards in the afternoon, but on account of the number of "bums" and "boos" passing through here continuously of late, nothing was thought of it.

The attack was made on the car after nine o'clock and after the night shift at the coal chutes had gone to work. Three of the Italians remained in one of the cars after the others went to work, one of these being laid up with an injured leg. They were in the car when the robbers entered.

The door of the bank car was bolted but the fastening was won't and by pushing hard with their shoulders the thugs broke it open. They covered the men in the car with the gun and on the threat to kill secured the money, watches and the other two guns. One of the dark-skinned laborers was forced to stand near the man with the gun and dig up his cash, while the gun man amused himself by poking his captive's head with the muzzle of the revolver. One of the other members of the robbers' gang approached the bank there the injured man lay and started to jerk off the bandages around the Italian's leg, thinking money might be hidden there. The handling of the leg caused the Italian great pain and he dug under the mattress in his bunk and fetched out his savings.

The other Italian managed to slip through a rear door in the car and ran toward the coal chutes where he informed his countrymen what was happening. The entire force left off work and started for the cars, but a few shots from the robbers scared them away and the robbers made their escape. A telephone message was sent to Sheriff Ransom and Chief of Police Appleby from the roundhouse and the chief of police and the sheriff, Turnkey Philo Kemp and Officer Patrick Fanning went out to the railroad yards in George Decker's auto. A search was made of the yards, starting from the east end at Reed's crossing, but no trace of the robbers could be found and it is thought they got away on some freight train. The officers, however, hunted until after one o'clock this morning, tramping through the yard grass.

The Italians were found in one of the bank cars, all huddled together in a wild, frightened mass. Two of the number, who were in the car which was robbed have decided that life in America is too full of dangers and will return to their homes in Italy. Workmen at the yards are of the opinion that local talent may have been connected with the affair.

STRAY HORSE CARED FOR BY BOY SCOUTS

A Horse Wandering Loose About the Second Ward Kept Out of Mischief by Two Boy Scouts.

An old horse, belonging to a second ward resident named Ed. Reynolds, was quartered on Goose Island in the north end of town. The horse didn't like his quarters. Therefore, he broke loose and started for home. He evidently didn't know the way very well, and so wandered aimlessly about the second ward. Finally, the attention of the second ward people was attracted to the animal, which had been trying to get on peoples' porches and had been lying in the yards, and they sent for the police. When the officers arrived on the scene, they found that two boy scouts had found the horse and were taking care of it until the arrival of the owner or someone in authority. Officer Sam Brown took the horse and gave it to his owner to be taken care of. The little incident shows plainly the readiness with which the scouts are willing to do a good deed.

COAT STOLEN FROM STORE LAST NIGHT

Garment Belonging to Jack Pappas Taken But Thief Threw It Away As It Contained Nothing of Value.

What is thought to have been an attempt at robbery was made last night at the confectionery store of Jack Pappas on West Milwaukee street, near the corner of Academy street, an unknown young man taking a coat containing a bank book and other papers and a money bag containing a handkerchief and other trinkets of no value, belonging to the proprietor of the place. About eleven o'clock while Pappas was working in the store, a young man, whose identity he did not know, entered the store. Pappas was busy in another part of the place, at the time, and paid no attention to him, but a few minutes later when he returned the man was gone, and when Pappas went to go home his coat was missing. The papers, bank book and wallet were found near the store and the coat was picked up near the office of the Blitz Brewing company and taken to the police office. Pappas secured his lost property this morning.

FINED FOR RIDING ON THE SIDEWALKS

Peter Pappas, a Greek, Paid $7.40 for Riding Bicycle on Sidewalk on North Chatham Street.

Peter Pappas, a Greek, for whom a warrant was issued yesterday for riding a bicycle on North Chatham street, appeared in municipal court this morning, and through an interpreter, James Zanias, pleaded guilty to the charge. A fine of $5 and costs or $2.40 was assessed by the judge, which Pappas paid. The fine imposed was heavier than is usually fixed for the first offense, but the circumstances in the case were such as to warrant it, in the opinion of the court. Pappas struck the three-year-old son of Fred Corryell while riding the wheel and knocked the boy down, although he said, through his interpreter, that he had not intended to do so and the boy had run out on the sidewalk. Because of the accident the court held that the defendant was deserving of more than the minimum fine and warned Pappas against continuing the practice.

LINK AND PIN. SAFETY COMMITTEE MADE IMPROVEMENTS

Chicago &amp; Northwestern.

Places Guards on Machinery to Protect Employees—Everything Possible Done to Decrease Danger.

That the members of the local safety committee are not content with merely making suggestions for improvement in a general way is proven by the examples of their work in the shops at the South Janesville roundhouse. Guards have been placed recently on the planers, drill press and flywheels to protect workmen and all others who may come near the machinery from injury by same. These safety appliances were prepared upon the suggestion of the local members and the officials readily gave their approval because they realize that anything that will insure the safety of their employees is of great economic benefit to the railway company.

This is not in accord with the impressions held by many who consider the railway company as a heartless organization that seldom, if ever, takes into consideration the welfare of its employees. Contrary to such impressions the men who hold official positions on the railways are just as careful as anyone could be. And their consideration for the safety of those in their employ rests not only upon the humanitarian basis, but also on the economic benefit to the corporation and to society.

For these reasons the organization of the central safety committee with its local branches in every shop was advocated and its work encouraged and the results of the movement is demonstrated in a very practical manner in the local shops as well as in the annual reports which show a great decrease in the number of accidents to employees in nearly all of the shops of the company.

Pleasure as an End.

The man who chooses pleasure as the object of his life has no real haven, but is like a boat that beats up and down and drifts and drifts to and fro, merely to feel the motion of the waves and the impulse of the wind. When the voyage of life is done he has reached no port; he has accomplished nothing. —Henry Van Dyke.

Little Bed-Time Tales By EDITH HAVENS

The Gold Piece

THE wealthy man riding along the country road paused to listen to the song of the rippling brook. "How beautiful and clear the water is," he said to himself, and pulling the horses to a stop, he stepped from the carriage and walked close to the edge of the stream.

Now, the playful South Wind was full of life this morning, and of a sudden it darted after a little pile of dust in the roadway. Whisk—away went the dust with the wind laughing after it.

Puff—the hurrying dust brushed the wealthy man full in the face and he was blinded for the moment as it filled his eyes.

Out of his pocket came his handkerchief with a jerk, but he did not notice the flash of glittering yellow which came from his pocket. It was a gold coin, and it fell silently among the weeds at his feet.

He bathed his eyes with the cool water from the stream, and feeling better, he got into his carriage and drove away.

Hardly was he out of sight when down the road there came two barefoot boys. They shouted with glee as

"Money," answered the first boy, gripping the coin tight. "You surely are going to divide with me," said the second boy eagerly. "No, I am not," answered the first boy selfishly, "I found it, and it is mine."

"If I had found it I would have given you half," said the second boy.

"I don't believe you," said the first boy.

Without a second's warning, the second boy struck his friend, and then they fought and wrestled and rolled all about in the dusty road.

"Going to give me half?" panted the second boy.

"No," growled the boy who found the coin.

The battle grew fiercer, and of a sudden the gold coin flew from the first boy's hand and fell with a funny little splash into the brook. In vain they searched for it. How ashamed they were.

"I will divide the next time," the first boy said.

"What is it?" asked the other boy, the second boy hung his head, very much ashamed.

they ran along, and they kicked up the dust in a merry way.

Suddenly one of the boys darted to the side of the road and, stooping, picked up from among the weeds something which sparkled in the sunlight.

"What is it?" asked the other boy, coming closer.

PUBLIC LIKES POSTAL BANKS

Records Show Western States Lead in Average Deposits.

Washington, July 20.—In announcing the designation of fifty additional second-class postoffices in twenty-six separate states as postal savings banks, Postmaster General Hitchcock declared the system was growing in favor with the public. This, he said, was especially true in the western states.

He cited a record made in Cripple Creek, Colo., where in four weeks forty-two deposits of $100 each were made.

The United States coupon bonds will be ready for delivery Saturday.

NEWSPAPERS SOLD BY MACHINE

Slot Vendors Are Used With Great Success in New York Trial.

New York, July 20.—Newspapers were sold in New York by slot machines. The machines worked splendidly on their first trial.

With his brother, Arthur Hotelling, he expects to revolutionize the newspaper selling business through the use of slot machines which are simple to work, all the mechanism being set in motion and the paper delivered by one pull at the lever, once the penny has been deposited.

Tehran, Persia, July 20.—The government shows resolution in face of the situation created by the landing on the Caspian coast of the exiled shah, Mohammed Ali Mirza. A cabinet composed of democrats and moderates has been formed with Shapohdar, leader of nationalists, as premier.

A Pedant at Death.

Malherbe, the French poet, on account of a delicate ear and refined taste, and a habit of criticizing everything that he saw or heard, was called "the tyrant of words and syllables." When dying, his confessor, in speaking of the happiness of heaven, expressed himself inaccurately. "Say no more about it," said Malherbe, "for your style will disgust me with it." —A. P. Russell, Characteristics.

"Queer English."

These specimens of "queer English" are given by a writer in the Cleveland Review and Observer: "I heard a man talking of a political candidate the other day say: 'If he only takes the stand when he runs he'll have a "walkover".' and: "A Galvestonian who has a mule for sale, hearing that a friend in Houston wanted to buy a mule, telegraphed him: 'Dear friend—if you are looking for a No. 1 mule, don't forget me.'"

Token of Wedded Bondage.

A bracelet was once used to perform the marriage ceremony, no other article approximating a ring being handy. It so happened that the bracelet was the gift of the bridegroom to his bride.

Purchase Completed.

The little boy sat by the roadside idly poking the dust, says the Youngstown Telegram. When the big man came along the little boy looked up and said: "Sister, is this your park?" "What'll you gumps for?" quizzed the big man. "Fourteen hundred thousand million dollars," replied the little boy. "All right," smiled the big man, "just take it right along with you."

On the Hotel Piazza.

"Why don't you show a little ambition, Silthers?" asked Blinks. "Go in and make a reputation for yourself!" "What's the use?" said Silthers. "I'd no sooner make it than these old ladies on the piazza here would tear it all to pieces." —Harper's Weekly.

On Monday of this week Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Weaver celebrated the anniversary of their golden wedding at their home, 315 Monroe street. A family reunion was held and at six o'clock a supper was served to fifty relatives and friends on the lawn.

they have since made their home. Mr. and Mrs. Weaver are about the same age and both are natives of New York state. He was born January 15, 1813, in Niagara county and she was born September 5 of the same year in the town of Houndsfield, Jefferson county. Both came to Wisconsin. Mrs. Weaver's maiden name was Leona Holloway.

Eight children were born to them, six of whom are now living. These are: Mrs. John Brown, Winona, Minn.; Mrs. George Garlock, and Mrs. Charles Allen, St. Paul; Mrs. A. P. Wood, Grand Rapids, Wis.; and Mrs. Harriet and Orlando Weaver of this city.

NOTES FOR CITY FARMERS ONLY.

By H. L. RANN.
A wealthy packer, noted for his piety and paunch, advises the tolling masses to buy the cheaper cuts of meat and thus reduce the high cost of living.

This is a good idea. If you have a turboted stomach. If you have overburdened your gums against a piece of neck from a steer which died of neglect and old age, your teeth will look like an asparagus bed after a hard frost. Another deficiency is a Juliet Hank steak from the left hind leg of a venal sheep which has been fattened on rag weed and mud. After a man has allowed these duties to percolate into his system he will be able to digest a rubber domet without the aid of a chaser. Dentists tell us that the rump steak has splintered more promising teeth than the brass knuckle. We know a man who tried out a new $1 bridge on a piece of boiled neck, and when they pried his jaws loose his mouth looked like a wash-out on the main line. A cross-grained round steak will draw your teeth while you wait, and after it glides past your throat it will sit as easy as a tight skirt on a throbbing gutter. Stick to the porthouse, unless you want to look like a gunny sack full of cantaloupes.

We have been asked to give the origin of the term, "sourer than hen's teeth." This phrase originated with Casabianca when he stood on the burning deck and called for a cold towel. Because the hen does not show her real nature at every suggestion of mirth there is a popular superstition to the effect that she has no teeth. The hen is not a frivolous bird. She is about as full of lightness and repartee as the Encyclopedia Britannica, and her mental processes are slower than the supreme court. But she is equipped with a fine set of movable teeth, which she sharpens on the nearest gravel bed just before meat time. If you cling to the old fallacy that the hen has no teeth, run a couple of fingers down her throat when you catch her in a yawn and wait for results.

GOVERNOR TO BE MADE SENATOR

Gov. Hoke Smith of Georgia.

Atlanta, Ga., July 20.—Gov. Hoke Smith's election as U. S. Senator to succeed the late Sen. A. S. Clay, has taken from the State of Georgia and placed in the national arena one of the great fighters and progressive leaders. It also opens the way to former Gov. Brown for a reelection to governorship.

During his career in the gubernatorial office, Hoke Smith has made many enemies and many warm friends. He has gone contrary to popular opinion frequently and by so doing has helped to clear the air of his own state. His associates, many of whom disagreed with him on certain policies, are all unanimous in declaring that he acted according to his own conscience in the matter and believe that in the United States Senate he will be a leader for the advancement of policies which vitally interest the average citizen.

Painting With a Sponge.

An artist whose work in water color is described in the Studio says that because the subtle brushes are too small, she uses for certain sweeping effects of light and shade on the dresses, for example, a sponge. This artist is described as using water colors, not within the narrow limitations usually prescribed, but as an individual means of expression. She sometimes joins three pieces of the water color board together to make the pictures she likes to produce in this medium.

Fire at the works of the New Duty Manufacturing company on North Main street, called out the fire department, an alarm being sent in about half past seven o'clock from box 21. An overheated stack in the moulding room, it is thought, was the cause of the blaze, leading the cupola of the building. The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one ground disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh of the Bladder. It is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is the only medicine that cures it. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and restoring nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer the Hundred Dollar Reward for any case that it fails to cure. Send for free booklet. Address, P. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is particularly adapted to ladies and children, and beneficial in all cases in which a wholesome, strengthening and effective laxative should be used. It is perfectly safe at all times and dispels colds, headaches and the pains caused by indigestion and constipation so promptly and effectively that it is the one perfect family laxative which gives satisfaction to all and is recommended by millions of families who have used it and who have personal knowledge of its excellence.
